This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

INTRODUCTION.

THE volume now presented to the public after the lapse of nearly three hundred years appears to have been the genealogical common-place book of Tristram Risdon, the author of the well-known 'Chorographical Description or Survey of the County of Devon.'

Though the compilation of the manuscript must have occupied many years, we are only able to fix the period approximately. On page 180 the death is recorded of Charles Blunt, Earl of Devon, within two years of the time of writing, while on page 279 Sir Popham Southcot is mentioned as having been knighted in 1628. It is clear, therefore, that the book was for the most part written between 1608 and 1628, and it may be assumed that it was synchronous with the 'Chorographical Description,' which Prince, in his 'Worthies of Devon,' tells us occupied our author from the year 1605 to the year 1630. It is identified as Risdon's by the fact that on the first page are written, in the same hand as the body of the work, the words 'Liber Tristram Risdon,' and that the list of Sheriffs of Devonshire is, so far as it goes, identical with that printed in the Survey, including the introductory note thereto. There are numerous other points of resemblance which leave no doubt as to the authorship of the manuscript, which may be regarded as a genealogical and heraldic supplement to the Survey.

The volume contains 188 leaves, many of which, including the last, are blank. It is of foolscap size, and somewhat roughly bound in polished vellum. On the back is written the single word 'Risdon,' while on the front cover are the letters 𝔅 𝔟. It is

No. 3531 of the manuscripts in the Exeter Cathedral Library, in which it is preserved, and contains the old Book Plate of that Library—a Bishop enthroned, holding in the dexter hand a representation of the West Front of the Cathedral Church of Exeter, and in the sinister a key, the inscription being 'The Cathedral Library at Exeter, Anno Dom^ni^ 1749.' Over this plate is written in a hand, probably of the middle of the last century, the words 'Liber Ecclesiæ Cath. Exon.' The first leaf, save for the name of Risdon already referred to, is blank, and the succeeding five pages were ruled and intended for an index to the Brevia Collecta begun on page 37 of the manuscript, which was the original page 1 of the author, and no doubt the thirty-four preceding pages were all intended to contain the index to this Section. The present pagination was made in red ink by that indefatigable antiquary and accomplished genealogist Mr. Winslow Jones, to whom our thanks are due for some assistance during the progress of our work.*

The General Armory covers from page 8 to page 41, but pages 37, 39, 40, and 41 are for the most part filled with the 'Brevia' already referred to. The arms are tricked, but unfortunately in some cases, and occasionally in those of special interest, the tinctures are omitted. Nevertheless it contains an enormous mass of useful heraldic information, and the arms of many families are here given which it would be difficult, if not impossible, to find elsewhere. As regards our interpretation of the tricking, we have for the most part followed the latest edition (1894) of Parker's 'Glossary,' but as regards certain charges, we have adopted the practical suggestions of Planché. Notably, we have throughout blazoned all circular figures except bezants as roundels, a course which is justified not alone by the practice of the early heralds, but by the fact that in some instances no tinctures are given, and the use of this term was therefore the only method of securing uniformity. In like manner, instead of speaking of drops of fluid as gouttes de sang, gouttes de poix and so forth, we have invariably blazoned them of their tincture. Again, we have found it a little difficult to discriminate between cinquefoils and roses, as well as to identify some other plant-forms, and it has occasionally been impossible to identify the birds and to describe accurately some other charges.*

To the account of the Feudal Baronies of Devonshire more time has been devoted than to any other part of the work, and though Risdon's statements have been found singularly accurate in the main, it has been possible to make a few important corrections and many additions to his text. In particular attention is called to the change in the early part of the Courtenay pedigree brought to light by researches into the records of King John's time, and which corrects all the Courtenay pedigrees to be found in the usual works of reference. It may further be said that no account exists save this, so far as has been ascertained, of the baronies whose history is here traced.

The list of the Sheriffs of Devon corresponds with the printed list in the 'Chorographical Description,' but differs in many important respects from that published in the Thirty-first Annual Report of the Deputy Master of the Rolls (page 278). We have made some corrections from this list, and some from original records, but even now we fear that no strictly accurate list of these officers exists.

The list of Justices Itinerant is very incomplete, but it is useful as far as it goes, and in many cases mentions the Court over which, when in the Capital, each Justice presided.

The list of the Mayors of Exeter varies considerably from the published lists, for which without doubt all later authors are indebted to the labours of John Hooker, alias Vowel. Many of the variations are, however, to be accounted for by the fact that whereas Hooker and his successors give the Christian year in which each Mayor was elected, Risdon adopts the regnal year of each succeeding King, and probably was unacquainted with the actual date of election.

With regard to the lists of Knights and others in the various Western counties, it is unnecessary to say more than that the arms, where given, are tricked, as in the Armory already described; and that, owing to the plan adopted by Risdon, the names of many persons occur under more than one King's reign. It should, perhaps, be mentioned with regard to the lists for Wiltshire and Hampshire that in the MS. the county headings are omitted, but there can be no room for error in classifying the Knights enumerated under those counties.

The collection of 'Brevia' contains an enormous mass of most important genealogical matter, taken from original deeds which doubtless at one time or another passed through Risdon's hands. With this part of the work it has been thought best not to do more than make obvious corrections, but the entries have been so far compared with the Fine Rolls and other Records as to prove conclusively their great accuracy and value.

In conclusion, we have to express our indebtedness to Miss Annie Glanville, of Exeter, for much highly-valued aid in the preparation of the indexes.

HONORES COMITATUS DEVONIÆ, ET QUOT FEODA TENENT PER SE ET MILITES SUOS IN COMITATU DEVONIÆ.

OKHAMTON BARONIA.

Arms: per pale, dexter, chequy ... a fess ... ; sinister, ... two bars ...*

WILLELMUS CONQUESTOR dedit honorem de Okhampton cum pertinenciis Baldwino de Sapi qui genuit Ricardum filium suum et heredem, et filias Adelam et Emmam.

Adela nupta fuit cuidam militi de comitatu Cancie, sed permansit sterilis.

Emma autem nupta fuit Willelmo Avenell per quem habuit filium Radulphum. Obiit Willelmus Avenell, et dicta Emma cepit in virum Willelmum Averinches et habuit filium per dictum Willelmum Averinches nomine Robertum.

Ricardus filius Baldwini Sapi dominus de Okhamton dilexit Robertum Averinches et fecit illum accipere homagium militum honoris de Okhamton, et fecit tenentes omnium maneriorum suorum jurare ei fidelitatem sicut domino suo et heredi dicti Ricardi.

Robertus de Averinches decessit ab Anglia cito post hoc, et cepit in uxorem filiam Godwini Dole in transmarinis partibus,

* The arms of the family of Okehampton, of Devon, are given by Burke (Armory) as Chequy, or and azure, two bars, argent. They appear, however, to be the arms assigned to Baldwin de Sap, the 1st Lord of Okehampton, by later heralds. We can find no authority for Risdon's impaled coat.

et genuit ex ea Matildem filiam suam, que nupta fuit domino [Roberto] de Aincoort, ex quibus nata fuit Hawisia de Aincoort.

Ricardus dominus de Okhamton moriebatur, et Robertus de Averinches Adela soror Ricardi successit in hereditatem et fecit Ranulphum de Avenel filium seniorem sororis sue Emme heredem suum, et dominum de Okhamton.

Reginaldus Comes Cornubie avunculus regis Henrici II. obtulit dicto Ranulpho de Avenell filiam suam in uxorem, sed ille accepit sororem Ricardi Comitis Devonie et Willelmi de Vernona.

Quam ob rem iratus Comes Reginaldus juravit, quod faceret eum amittere dominium de Okhamton cum omnibus pertinenciis: misitque propter Matildem filiam Roberti de Averinches in transmarinis partibus manentem acquisivitque assisam contra Ranulphum Avenell, scilicet si Robertus de Averinches fuit mancipatus de honore de Okhamton scilicet per homagium militum et fidelitatem tenencium de maneriis die quo transfretavit mare, et nunquam postea rediit. Et si Matildis predicte sit proximus heres predicti Roberti.

Hoc modo Ranulphus Avenell perdidit dominium de Okhamton ad hunc usque diem.

Henricus II. Rex Anglie per consilium Reginaldi predicti predictam Matildem cum honore de Okhamton dedit Roberto Fitz Roy dicti regis avunculo, et fratri Reginaldi, qui genuit ex ea Matildem quam post obitum Roberti dedit Rex Henricus II. Reginaldo de Courtenay, quem regina Alinor adduxerat secum in Angliam.

Dedit etiam predictus Henricus rex Willelmo Courtenay filio predicti Reginaldi manerium de Sutton juxta Oxford.* Qui per consilium et preceptum patris sui accepit in uxorem Hawisiam† sororem Matildis uxoris patris sui, et genuit ex ea Robertum de Courtenay.

Matilde vero uxore patris sui sterili manente devenit honor de Okehamton‡ cum pertinenciis Roberto de Courtenay filio

* The manor of Sutton was given by Henry II. to Reginald de Courtenay in 1161, and passed to Robert de Courtenay his younger (?) son, upon whose death it reverted to Robert de Courtenay, grandson and heir of the original grantee. (See N. and Q., 8 S., vol. vii., p. 441.)

† The name of Hawisia's husband was Reginald de Courtenay: he was the eldest (?) son of Reginald de Courtenay of Sutton, and brother of Robert de Courtenay, sen., above mentioned. No William de Courtenay comes into the direct line of the pedigree. (Ibid.)

‡ The manor of Okehampton was held by Matilda, the wife of Reginald de Courtenay, sen., while the honour of Okehampton was in 1205 in the possession of Hawisia de Courtenay, the widow of Reginald de Courtenay, jun. We have dealt with the question of the early Courtenays at some length in Notes and Queries (8 S., vol. vii., pp. 441-443, and 503-505), Hawisie de Ayncoort, qui accepit in uxorem Mariam filiam Willelmi de Vernon Comitis Devonie cum medietate manerii de Cruke.

Robertus de Courtenay genuit ex Maria predicta Johannem de Courtenay qui habuit in uxorem Isabellam [filiam] Hugonis Comitis Oxonie et genuit ex ea Hugonem.

Hugo de Courtenay habuit in uxorem Elianoram filiam Hugonis Le Dispenser, Comitis Wintonie, qui dedit ei in liberum maritagium maneria de Wootton et Dunstredon, et habuit exitum Hugonem cum aliis.

Hugo Courtenay II. cepit in uxorem Agnetam filiam Johannis de Sancto Johanne de Basing, et habuit exitum Hugonem tercium cum aliis.

Isto Hugoni secundo post mortem Isabelle de Fortibus comitisse Albemarlie et Devonie devenit hereditas et nomen Comitis Devonie ut proximiori heredi dicte Isabelle.

Hugo Courtenay tercius comes Devonie, et Dominus Okhamton cepit in uxorem Margaretam de Bohun regis sanguinis natam, et sic in continua serie eorum remanebat dominium de Okhamton usque ad temporem regis Edwardi IV. qui dictum dominium cum comitatu dedit Humfrido Stafford cum quo parvi temporis permansit et honor iste et vita. Postea ad Edwardum Courteney rediit honor hic et comitatus Devonie et in filio suo Willelmo et Henrici filii sui per regem Henricum VIII. lese majestatis offensionem iterum cecidit hic honor. Sed Maria Regina iterum Edwardum Henrici illius filium restituit ad dictos honores tam comitatus quam baronie de Okhamton, quo sine prole defuncto hereditarius de Okhampton divisus est inter Mohun, Arondel de Talvarn, Trelawny et Courteney de . . . et Vivian, qui genus traxerunt a quatuor sororibus Edwardi illius quem Henricus VII. in avitos illos honores restituisset.

Baronia de Okehamton tenetur de domino rege per tria feoda militum in capite. Et predicta baronia remansit integra, et dominus ejusdem facere solet servicium predictum.

* The following list of persons holding knights' fees under the Bishop of Exeter in the reign of Henry III. indicates the extent of their temporal possessions in the counties of Devon and Cornwall :

Reginald de Valletort, 59 fees in Tremeton.
Andrew de Cardinan, 71 fees in Cardinan and Botardel.
Robert Fitz Walter and Matilda de Lucy, 20 fees in Mineli and Lantian.
William Bruer, 10 fees in Middelond.
William de Boteraus, 12 fees in Thalcarn.
Randolph Blowio, 7 fees in Polrode.
Simon Pincerna, half a fee in Lanhou.

Walter de Godarvill, half a fee in Leskared and Tiwarneyl.

From this list it appears that the Bishop of Exeter held 234 knights' fees, which, though entered under Devon in 'Testa de Nevill,' were probably all situate in the county of Cornwall.

Totam hanc baroniam sive Abbathiam dedit Rex Henricus VIII. Johanni Russell Comiti Bedford cum omnibus maneriis et terris ad eandem pertinentibus, in cujus posteris dicta Abbathia cum pertinenciis suis ad hunc usque diem contynuata est.

* Like the Bishops of Exeter, the Abbots of Tavistock held a certain number of knights' fees, which, however, appear to have all been situate in the county of Devon. The following is a list of their holders, taken from the 'Testa de Nevill':

Galfrid de Northecoth, in Northcoth and Wodham.

† The Exon Domesday Book records that the manor of Wincheleia was held by Bristricus previous to the Conquest, and that Goscelmus held a lease of the park under William I., for which he paid 12s. 6d. annually. The overlords of the Honour of Gloucester were the Clares, Earls of Hertford, from whom it passed by inheritance to the Despencers.

The manor of Winkleigh, however, was granted by William I. to the ancestor of Roger de Keynes, who in 1315-16, at Exeter, claimed to hold it by descent. (Plac. de quo warranto, 9-10 Ed. II., Com. Devon, Rot. 36, p. 167.) But before that date the manor had been divided into two moieties, one held by the family of Keynes, and afterwards known as Winkleigh Keynes, and the other by the Tracies, from whom it passed, as Wink-leigh Tracy, to the Champernownes, Martins and Columbers. It would appear that the latter manor passed from the hands of Columbers about the middle of the fourteenth century, as in 1359 it was granted by King Edward III. to Nigel de Loringe in tail male (Cal. Rot. Pat., 33 Ed. III., pt. 2, memb. 7). At this period Thomas de Keynes was holding the manor of Winkleigh Keynes (Inq. P.M., 35 Ed. III. Pt. 1, No. 107).

BARONIA HONORIS DE TOTENAIS.

Magister Camden in libro suo Britannie post Judealem de Totenais* scribit esse Willelmi Briwer baroniam hanc per cujus filiam alteram ad Breosos, et ab illis ibidem ad Georgium de Cantilupo, Dominum Abergavenny, cujus soror Melisenta Eudoni la Zouch elocata suis nupciis ad Barones Zoucheos transtulit hunc honorem.

* Juhell de Totnes appears in Domesday as holding the borough of Totnes (Exon Domesday, fol. 334). He was forfeited by William II, and Totnes was given by Henry I. to Roger de Nonant, sen. (Rot. Hundred, Com. Devon, 3 Edw. I., No. 39, p. 83), by whose descendants it was held unquestioned until the accession of King John, when Henry de Nonant held the honour. In 1200, however, William de Braose, who appears to have been great-grandson of Juhell de Totnes, made claim to the borough (Rot. de Obl. 1 Joh., memb. 9), but subsequently transferred his rights to his third son, Reginald de Braose. ('Testa de Neville,' vol. i., fol. 840, p. 195*a*.) He prosecuted his claim against Henry de Nonant, and ultimately a partition of the property was made, one moiety remaining with Nonant, and the other being allotted to Braose. (Rot. Litt. Claus., 8 Joh., memb. 2.) In 1206, after the death of Henry de Nonant (whose widow Isabella married, secondly, Robert de Vere, Earl of Oxford—'Testa de Nevill,' vol. i., fol. 840—and, thirdly, . . . de Bolebec—Rot. Origin., 29 Hen. III., Rot. 6) and Roger de Valletort, this moiety passed by grant of the King to Peter de Rupibus, Bishop of Winchester (Rot. Litt. Claus., 8 Joh., memb. 5), who received at the same time the wardship of the heirs of Roger de Valletort ('Testa de Nevill,' vol. i., fol. 840), on whose behalf he undertook to pay the fine agreed upon between Roger de Valletort and the King, in respect to the Nonant moiety of Totnes; and ten years later, in 1217, Reginald de Valletort paid a fine of ten marks (Rot. de Fin., 17 Joh., memb. 1, in dorso), and in the same year obtained a writ directing the Sheriff of Devon to deliver to him all the fees of Totnes within his jurisdiction. (Rot. Litt. Claus., 1 Hen. III., memb. 18 de rev.) In 1227 he paid 100*l.* in settlement of the fine of 600 marks which his father, Roger de Valletort, had fixed with King John for that portion of the lands of Henry de Nonant which by agreement with William de Braos remained to Nonant, and had by him been given to Roger de Valletort and his heirs. (Rot. Fin., 11 Hen. III., memb. 10.) In 1244 Reginald de Valletort paid a fine of 600 marks on obtaining seisin of the manors of Clifton Clanton and Brixham, which had been the dower of Isabella, the wife of Henry de Nonant (Rot. Origin., 29 Hen. III., Rot. 6). and from the 'Testa de Nevill' (vol. i. fol. 816, p. 108) we find that this Reginald de Valletort, whose wife was Johanna Basset, one of the daughters and heirs of Thomas Basset (Rot. Litt. Claus., 4 Hen. III., memb. 1, in dorso), held one moiety of the honour of Totnes. His Inquisition post mortem (Inq. p. m., 30 Hen. III., No. 11) shows him to have been dead in 1245, when his next brother, Radulph de Valletort, succeeded to the lands of Brixham, Harberton and others, which he held in capite, Johanna, the widow, having one part of the manor of Brixham in dower. (Inq. p. m., 30 Hen. III.. No. 10; 27 Edw. I., Nos. 30 and 32.) Radulph married Johanna . . ., and was dead before 1269, leaving an only son and heir, Reginald de Valletort, who, though under age, married Hawisia, to whom two parts of the manor of Brixham were given in dower (Ibid.) Reginald died about 1269, without issue (Inq. p. m., 54 Hen. III., No. 9), when his moiety of the borough of Totnes passed to his uncle, Roger de Valletort, who did homage for his lands shortly after. (Rot. Fin., 54 Hen. III., memb. 13) By him, who became insane, the estates of the family were dissipated, much of his property being given to Richard, Earl of Cornwall, and to Alexander de Okeston, who had married the widow of his brother Radulph, and at his death he held only the manor, and with it the Barony of Harberton, which escheated to the Crown (Rot. Hundr. Extr., Com. Cornub.. 4 Edw. I., memb. 31, in dorso; and Rot. Hundr., Com. Devon., 3 Edw. I., No. 20). He died 1275, and in 1282 his two nearest heirs were Henry de la Pomeray and Peter Corbet, but they did not prosecute their claim. Some years later, however, on the death of Edmund, Earl of Cornwall, Peter Corbet and Henry de la Pomeray presented a petition for the recovery of the manor and castle of Trematon, and other lands in Devon and Cornwall which had belonged to Valletort (Abb. Placit., 33 Edw. I., East. Term, Rot. 5). The suit continued until the year 1315, when Corbet and Henry, son of the above de la Pomeray, were nonsuited in their plea for the restitution of the manor and castle of Trematon (Abb. Placit., 9 Edw. I., East. Term, Rot. 123), shortly after which the whole of the honour of Totnes passed into the hands of the Canteloups, probably by purchase.

Reginald de Braose, who, as already explained, obtained one moiety of the Barony of Totnes by agreement with Nonant, was forfeited by King John in 1208, and in the following year the castle and town of Totnes and the manors of Cornworthy and Loddiswell were granted to Henry 'filius Comes,' afterwards Earl of Cornwall (Rot. Litt. Pat., 10 Joh., memb. 1; and 'Testa de Nevill,' vol. i., fol. 840). In the year 1215, however, Giles, Bishop of Hereford, elder brother of Reginald de Braose, obtained from King John a grant of all the lands, tenements and castles which had been his father's, but he appears to have died between October 21 and November 18 of that year, without taking possession of the property (Rot. Litt. Pat., 17 Joh., membs. 13, 14). The King thereupon directed the Earl of Cornwall to deliver the Castle of Totnes to Reginald de Valletort, the writ being dated at Rochester, November 21, 1215 (Rot. Litt. Pat., 17 Joh., memb. 12), but the effect of this grant does not appear. In the year 1217 Reginald de Braose, already referred to, returned to his allegiance, and shortly afterwards had livery of all his father's lands (Rot. Litt. Claus., 1 Hen. III., memb. 15, de revers). In December of the same year he sued Henry, Earl of Cornwall, for Totnes and the honour of Totnes, and November 12, 1218, the King's writ was issued to the Sheriff of Devon, directing him to deliver seisin of those knights' services of the honour of Totnes which were then in the King's hands (Rot. Litt. Claus., 3 Hen. III., memb. 13). This Reginald de Braose was dead before 1221, leaving by Græcia, his wife, daughter and co-heiress of William de Brewere, a son and heir, William de Braose, who married Eva, sister and co-heir of Walter Marshall, Earl of Pembroke (Inq. p. m., 3 Edw. I., No. 53; Calend. Gen., p. 227), and was dead in or before 14 Hen. III., 1229. His widow had the castle and lands of Totnes in dower, and upon her death they passed to her daughter Eva (Rot. Fin., 35 Hen. III., memb. 19; Abb. Placita, 37 Hen. III., Rot. 12, M'mas Term, p. 132; and 38 Hen. III., Rot. 14, Hill. Term, p. 143), who married William de Canteloup, to which family one moiety of the honour of Totnes was thus conveyed. This William was son and heir of William de Canteloup, who died in 1250 (Inq. p. m., 1 Edw. I., No. 16, Calend. Gen., p. 197), apparently by Milicent, widow of Almaric, Count of Evreux. (Rot. Litt. Claus., 1 Hen. III., memb. 22.) William de Canteloup the younger died in 1254 (Inq. p. m., 38 Hen. III., No. 46, Calend. Gen., 61), having done homage for his father's lands in 1251 (Rot. Fin., 35 Hen. III., memb. 8). He left a son, George Canteloup, who was born at 'Bergenny' in 1251, and died unmarried in 1272 (Inq. p. m., 1 Edw. I., No. 16, Calend. Gen., p. 197), seised of the manor and castle of Totnes (Abb. Rot. Origin., 1 Edw. I., Rot. 25). Of his two sisters, one, Johanna, was the wife of Henry de Hastings, and the mother of John de Hastings, who at the date of his uncle's death was fifteen years of age, and one of the co-heirs. The other sister, Milicent, became the wife of Eudo or Ivo de la Zouche, and was the other co-heir of George de Canteloup, taking to her husband the honour of Totnes, of which he had seisin on 1 March, 1273. After her husband's death she married . . . de Monte Alto.

* Oliver de Tracy was in possession of a moiety of the Lordship of Barnstaple in 1164, the other moiety being held by William de Braose, whose title was derived from his descent from Judael de Totnes (Rot. Pip., 11 Hen. II., Rot. 9, memb. 1). His son, Oliver de Tracy, appears to have gained possession of the whole Barony, as in 1194 he was sued by William de Braose for his part of the Honour (Abb. Placit, 6, Ric. I., Devon, Michaelmas Term, Rot. 6), and an agreement was arrived at in 1199 (Ibid., 1 John, Easter and Trinity term, Rot. 5), which, however, does not appear to have been very strictly observed. Oliver de Tracey married Eva, and was dead in or before 1210, his son, Henry de Tracy, succeeding him. After the forfeiture of William de Braose, he obtained a grant of Barnstaple and Tavistock, together with the whole honour of Barnstaple in demesne, with all their fees and appurtenances, as they were held by Oliver de Tracy and William de Braose. (Rot. Litt. Claus., 15 John, pt. 1, memb. 4.) Two years later, however, in 1215, he is ordered to deliver the Castle of Barnstaple to Giles de Braose, Bishop of Hereford (Rot. Litt. Pat., 17 John, memb. 14), and in 1216, being in arms against the King, his lands were granted to William de Briwer, jun. (Rot. Litt. Claus., 18 John, memb. 4.) In the following year, however, he was Sheriff of Devon, and in 1218 his lands had been restored to him; but Reginald de Braose made claim to the moiety which had belonged to his father (Rot. Litt. Claus., 2 Hen. III., memb. 14, in dorso), which was resisted on the plea that Tracy held by the King's grant (Rot. Litt. Claus., 2 Hen. III., memb. 14, in dorso). He was probably father of another Henry de Tracy, who was dead before 1273 (Inq. p. m., 2 Edw. I., No. 32). He had 'one daughter, named Eva' (ibid.), who married Guy de Bryane, and died during the lifetime of her father, when her husband seems to have married Sybilla, apparently a daughter of Walter de Sully, by whom he had a son and heir, Guy de Bryane (Inq. p. m., 25 Edw. I., No. 32). By Eva de Tracy he had a daughter, Matilda de Bryane, who in 1272, being then aged thirty-one years, was the wife of Galfrid de Camville, and the 'nearest heir' of Henry de Tracy, her grandfather (Inq. p. m., 2 Edw. I., No. 32). Of her marriage with Lord Martin we have found no mention, though it undoubtedly took place, as William Martin succeeded to the Barony of Barnstaple as heir of Henry de Tracy (Abb. Placit., 7-8 Edw. I., Mich's term, Maj. Record, Rot. 7).

quam Petrus filius Herberti paululum temporis habuit per donum Regis Johannis.

Regnante vero Henrico III. Henricus de Tracy dominium hoc tenuit cujus filia Matilda primo domino Martyn enupta, secundo hunc honorem Galfrido de Camvil marito attulit. Qui baro ad parliamentum vocatus est [23 Junii, 23] Edwardi I.

Post mortem predicte Matilde devenit honor hic Willelmo domino Martin filio suo Domino de Ceamoys, Dertinton et Barnstable cujus filius Willelmus sine liberis defunctus est, et devoluit hereditas Jacobo domino Audelegh de Hely cujus mater Joanna una fuerat sororum predicti Willelmi Martini filii, altera vero soror ejus Elinora nupta fuit Philippo de Columbers militi, que obiit sine prole. Hoc modo tota hereditas advenit Audeleigho. Jacobus iste Joanne filius duas nupserit uxores primam ex familia Mortymer secundam ex familia Le Strang. Et per utrasque habuit exitus. Ex prima natus est Nicolaus dominus Audelegh, qui ultimus est masculis ex hac familia qui honorem de Barnstable tenuit. Ille enim obiit sine liberis, et quevis magna hereditas ad sorores suas devenit, tamen virtute cujusdam doni talliat heredibus masculis Jacobi domini Audelegh, et pro defectu talis exitus remanere domino regi hic honor ad coronam effluxit.

Rex vero Ricardus II. fratri suo uterino Johanni Holland Hungtingdonie Comitis donavit, et tandem deficiente herede masculo in illa Hollandorum familia iterum in regium patrimonium rediit. Maria vero regina dedit Thome Marrow cujus filius vendidit Johanni Chichester seniori militi.

Castrum vero nunc (quamvis totaliter ruinosum) una cum feodis militum possidet Robertus Chichester miles jure hereditario sibi ab avo suo Johanne Chichester milite devolutum.

* 'William de Falesia' is written in the top margin of the page, but has no bearing upon the text.—EDS.

† It appears probable that this account, though differing from the ordinary authorities, is correct, and that there were in fact three consecutive Roberts in the pedigree. Robert filius Martini witnessed a charter of the Empress Maud in 1142 (Royal Chart., Duchy of Lanc., No. 17, Pipe Roll Soc., vol. x., p. 43, No. 26), and was dead in 1158, when his lands in Somerset were in the hands of the King (Rot. Pip., 5 Hen. II., Rot. 3, memb. 2, in dorso; Pipe Roll Soc., vol. i., pp. 21, 22), and his lands in Somerset, Wiltshire and Dorset were also described as in the King's hands in the following year (Rot. Pip., 6 Hen. II., Rot. 3, memb. 2; Rot. 6, memb. 1; and Rot. 7, memb 2, in dorso; Pipe Roll Soc., vol. ii., pp. 19, 41, 58). It seems impossible that this Robert could be the son of one of the Conqueror's companions, and probable that he should rather be identified with the Robertus secundus of the text. It is to be noted, however, that there is no mention of his holding lands in Devonshire. It was doubtless his son and heir, Robert Filius Martin, by whom scutage was paid in the counties of Devonshire and Somerset in 1161-1163 (Rot. Pip., 8 Hen. II., Rot. 1, memb. 2, and Rot. 3, memb. 2; Pipe Roll Soc., vol. v., pp. 6, 23; ibid., 9 Hen. II., Rot. 1, memb. 2, in dorso, vol. vi., p. 13), and he perhaps was the first owner of Dartington of this family.

* There were clearly two consecutive persons named William in the pedigree, the first of whom paid a fine for the release of his lands and castle of Pidela, in Dorset, in 1207 (Rot. Fin., 9 John, memb. 13), and was dead in 1209. He had married Avicia, to whom he had assigned the manor of Pulle as dower, and of this she had seisin in 1216, probably on the death of her son (Rot. Litt. Claus., 17 John, pt. 1, memb. 4). The second William held the honour of Cameis, in Wales, and had letters of protection while residing in that country in 1210 (Rot. Litt. Pat., 10 John, memb. 1). He was dead in 1216, when the custody of his lands and heirs was granted to Fulke de Breaute (Rot. Litt. Claus., 17 John, pt. 1, memb. 10), from whom in 1224 they passed to Henry de Trubleville (Rot. Fin., 8 Hen. III., memb. 2). He had married Engahared, or Angaretta, to whom the lands of Langacre, in Devon, and other lands in Somerset, were given in dower (Rot. Fin., 10 Hen. III., memb. 4; Rot. Litt. Claus., 10 Hen. III., memb. 8). She was dead in 1226 (ibid.), when her dower lands were delivered to Henry de Trubleville as guardian of her son Nicholas, heir to William, his father, as mentioned in the text.

† Nicholas Filius Martin was father of another Nicholas, who should take the place of the Willelmus dominus Martyn of the text; he was not, however, Lord Martin, his son being the first of the family to receive a writ of summons to the House of Lords. The second Nicholas died during his father's lifetime, he being succeeded by his grandson William, afterwards Lord Martin (Rot. Fin., 10 Edward I., membs. 16 and 15).

Matildem unicam filiam et heredem domini Henrici Tracy,* et habuit exitum Willelmum.

TORINTON BARONIA.

Arms : Gules, two bars or.

Tempore Regis Henrici II. Johannes de Torinton tenuit hanc baroniam. Postquem successit Willelmus de Torintona, et ultimus hujus nominis Matheus. Postea partita est hereditas in quinque porciones per sorores ultimi, que enupte fuere familiis de Tracy, Brian, Merton, Umfravill et Sully et tandem. . . .§

* Matilda, the wife of Nicholas Filius Martin, was the daughter and heir of Guy de Bryane by Eva, daughter and heir of Henry de Tracy, Lord of Barnstaple, as has been stated in the notes on the Barony of Barnstaple (ante, p. 63).

† As this account of the marriage of William, Lord Martin, differs from all recognised authorities, it is necessary to state that it is correct in every particular.

‡ A contract was entered into in 1296 for the marriage of Edward, eldest son and heir of William, Lord Martin, with Jonetta, eldest daughter of John de Hastings, it being at the same time arranged that William, son and heir of John de Hastings, should marry Edward's eldest sister, Alienora. Edward, however, died before his father, and it would appear that neither of the marriages thus arranged took place (Cal. Rot. Pat., 25 Edw. I., pat. 2, memb. 2). Nor is it probable that William, the eventual heir, was married to Jonetta de Hastings, as his widow, Margaret, was in 1325 the wife of Robert de Wateville; it is, however, possible that this may have been his second wife (Rot. Orig., 19 Edw. II., Rot. 23).

This William, Lord Martin, was the last male of this branch of the family, and on his death in 1325 his property reverted to his co-heirs. His sister Alienora and her husband, Philip de Columbers, had assigned to them, besides the wardship of James Audley, their nephew, the manors of Combe Martin, Barnstaple, Holdsworthy, and South Molton, together with certain lands in the city of Exeter, and the rents of East and West Anstey. Nicholas de Audley and Johanna, his wife, died before Lord Martin, and their son, James Audley, above mentioned, had assigned to him the hamlets of Kilmington, North Lew, Takebeare, and Staunton, the manors of Warkleigh, Nymet Tracy, Bovey Tracy, Raddon, Lidford (co. Somerset), Blackdown, the castle and town of Newport, and other property; while to Margaret, his widow, then married to Robert de Wateville was assigned the manor of Dartington, and other estates in Devon and Somerset (Rot. Orig., 19 Ed. II., Rot. 23).

§ John de Torinton had a dispute with the Abbess and Nuns of St. Edward's relative to the advowson of the Church of Torrington in 1194 (Plac.

Honor hic tempore Johannis de Torinton habuit 29 feoda, de quibus dictus Johannes tenuit 7 feoda de honore de Glocester.*

Abbrev., 6 Ric. I., m. 15 days after M'mas, Rot. 8). In the year 1201 he paid 50 marks for license to travel beyond seas, when he held nineteen knights' fees in capite and six knights' fees of the hoour of Gloucester (Rot. de Obl., 3 John, memb. 8). He died in or before 1207 (Rot. Litt. Claus., 9 John, memb. 12), and was succeeded by his son, William de Torinton, who is mentioned in letters respecting scutage in 1214 (Rot. Litt. Claus., 16 John, pt. 2, memb. 24, in dorso). He died in 1224, leaving a widow, Avicia, who had a grant of the manor of Torrington pending the settlement of her dower (Rot. Litt. Claus., 8 Hen. III., pt. 1, memb. 10), and who subsequently married Nicholas de Boleville, who in 1230 held her dower (Rot. Fin., 15 Hen. III., memb. 7). Leaving no issue, he was succeeded by his uncle, Matthew de Torinton, who in 1224 paid 100*l.* for the relief of his lands (Rot. Fin., 8 Hen. III., memb. 9), but died without issue in 1226, when the barony was broken up and alienated in such a manner that due service could not be rendered to the King (Rot. Litt. Claus., 11 Hen. III., memb. 16). It was partitioned amongst the five sisters and co-heirs of Matthew de Torinton, or their surviving heirs. The eldest sister, Emma, married . . . Merton, and was mother of Henry de Merton, who did homage for his part of Torrington in 1227 (Rot. Fin., 12 Hen. III., memb. 9). Another sister, Dionisia, married Henry Fitz William, who did homage for his wife's part of Torrington in 1228 (Rot. Fin., 12 Hen. III., memb. 7); but they appear to have died without issue, and two years before her death in 1239 she granted to her nephew, Henry de Merton, her fifth part of the Barony of Torrington (Rot. Fin., 23 Hen. III., memb. 4), after which two-fifths of the barony were held by Henry de Merton, who died in 1246. Another sister of Matthew de Torinton married . . . Tremenet. and was mother of Richard de Tremenet, who did homage for his part of Torrington in 1227 at the same time as his cousin, Henry de Merton, but he subsequently sold his share to Henry de Tracy, from whom it passed to Geoffrey de Camville in right of his wife, Matilda de Bryane, granddaughter of Henry de Tracy (Rot. Hundred., 3 Ed. I., Devon, No. 17). A fourth sister of Matthew de Torinton, named Sibilla, appears to have been the wife of Richard de Umfraville, and mother of Gilbert de Umfraville, who was one of the heirs of Torrington. The fifth daughter appears to have been Mabilia, wife of Walter de Sully. She was mother of Raymund de Sully, who was another of the heirs of Torrington, and in 1232 paid 49*l.* 9*s.* 3*d.* for the issue of his lands (Rot. Pip., 17 Hen. III., Rot. 6). The heirs of the barony were thus Henry de Merton, Raymond de Sully, Gilbert de Umfraville, Richard de Tremenet, and Dionisia de Torinton, wife of Henry FitzWilliam; but, as has been said, the inheritance of Dionisia passed to Merton and that of Richard de Tremenet was alienated. Some half-century later two-fifths of the barony were owned by Thomas de Merton, a ward in the care of John Wiger in 1274, his father, Walter de Merton, son of Henry de Merton, having died in 1272. At the same period, Raymond de Sully, who had died in 1241, was represented by Walter de Sully, his son and heir, who held a fifth part of Torrington, and Gilbert de Umfraville was represented by John de Umfraville, who had succeeded upon the death of his brother Henry in 1271. As has already been stated, the other fifth part had been alienated by Tremenet, and it passed from Tracy to Martin, as explained on p. 63 (Rot. Hundred., 3 Ed. I., Devon, No. 17). As regards the fifth part held by Sully, it was given in free marriage to Sibilla, his daughter, and Guy de Bryane, her husband; from them it went to Guy de Bryane, who was twenty-five years of age in 1306 (Inq. p. m., 35 Edw. I., No. 32), when his parents were both dead.

* Now known as Berry Pomeray, near Totnes.

† It appears probable that a generation is wanting in this pedigree, as Henry de la Pomeray the second fined for his lands in 1164, when probably his father had not long been dead. The period between 1066 and 1164 seems too great to have been filled by three persons only. The grandfather, father of this Henry, was undoubtedly called Gollinus, a synonym for Johel (Abb. Placit., 15 John, Trinity, Rot. 17, p. 90).

‡ This is incorrect. Rohesia, who was sister of Reginald, Earl of Cornwall, was of course an illegitimate daughter of King Henry I. She was married to Henry de la Pomeray, son and heir of Gollinus de la Pomeray. There is no John de la Pomeray in the pedigree.

§ For John read Henry de la Pomeray. The succeeding Henries are therefore incorrectly numbered in the text.

‖ Henry de la Pomeray (the second) paid 7*l.* 12*s.* 6*d.* as his scutage of Wales, and at the same time paid 200 marks for the fine of his lands in Devonshire, leaving 93*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* due to the Exchequer, and in the following year, 1165, he paid 29*l.* 6s. 8d. in reduction of this debt (Rot. Pip., 11 Hen. II., Rot. 9, memb. 1, vol. viii., pp. 80, 81 ; Ibid., 12 Hen. II., Rot. 7, memb. 1, in dorso, vol. ix., p. 94). He confirmed a charter of Gollinus, his grandfather, and Henry, his father, to the Abbot of Valli, of the Church of Stokeleigh, which was claimed as a part of the dower of Rohesia, his mother (Abb. Placit., 15 John, Trinity, Rot. 17, p. 90). This confirmation must have been between 1161 and 1184, as there is also a confirmation of Bartholomew, Bishop of Exeter, during those years. He appears to have married, secondly, Rohesia, sister of Duin Bardolf, who afterwards became the wife of John Russell (Rot. de Obl., 1 John, memb. 9). Of this we have no direct evidence, but we find her and her husband disputing with Henry de la Pomeray (the third) with respect to the lands of Stokeleigh, Upottery, and Ashcombe, the jury finding, in 1200, that Henry should hold Stokeleigh, and that John and Rohesia should have the other two manors, and there can be no doubt that the claim was for the dower of Rohesia (Abb. Placit., 2 John, Mich. Term., Rot. 2 and Rot. 4, pp. 26*a*, 27*b*). He is said to have died in 1293.

* Henry de la Pomeray III., who succeeded Henry de la Pomeray II., held lands in Cornwall, Devon, Essex, Hertford, Cambridge, Norfolk, and Suffolk, at his death, in 1207, when the Sheriffs of most of these counties were directed to deliver them into the hands of William de Briwere (Rot. Fin., 9 John, memb. 8).

† Another Henry de la Pomeray IV. must here be inserted in the pedigree. He fines in the sum of 600 marks for his father's lands in Devon and Cornwall in 1208 (Rot. Fin., 9 John, membs. 2 and 8). He and John de Erlegh had custody of the Castle of Exeter and of the County of Devon in 1215-16 (Rot. Litt. Pat., 16 John, pt. i., membs. 2 and 3). He was dead in 1221. He appears to have married the eventual heiress of Valletort.

‡ Henry de la Pomeray V. was in the ward of Ralph de Trubeville in 1221 (Rot. Litt. Claus., 6 Hen. III., pt. 1, membs. 21, 12). He did homage for his lands in 1232 (Rot. Fin., 16 Hen. III., memb. 3), and was one of the heirs of Roger de Valletort in 1238. He was dead in 1240. His wife's name was Marjery (Rot. Fin., 29 Hen. III., memb. 2).

§ Henry de la Pomeray VI. was in the ward of William Caperon in 1240 (Abb. Placit., 25 Hen. III., Coram Rege, Rot. 22, p. 110). His wife is called Isolda, or Isota, in inquisitions in 1292 ('Testa de Nevill,' vol. i., fols. 809-811). She was dead in 1310 (Rot. Orig., 4 Edw. II., Rot. 11) when she was a widow. It seems probable that the alleged marriage with Hawisia de Valletort is an error. He died in 1280 (Inq. p. m., 9 Edw. I., No. 82).

‖ Here also another Henry de Pomeray VII. must be inserted in the pedigree. He was born and baptized at Tregony in 1264 (Inq. p. m., 15 Edw. I., No. 72, prob. æt.), was in the ward of Galfrid de Camville in 1281 (Rot. Orig., 10 Edw. I., Rot. 3, p. 40). He was married, during his father's lifetime (Inq. p. m., 9 Edw. I., No. 82), to Johanna (Abb. Rot. Orig., 28 Edw. I., Rot. 20). He was dead in 1304 (Inq. p. m., 33 Edw. I., No. 51).

¶ Henry de la Pomeray VIII. was born in 1290 (Inq. p. m., 33 Edw. I., No. 51). He married Amicia, daughter of Galfrid de Camville (?), and died in 1328 (Inq. p. m., 2 Edw. III., pt. 2, No. 118).

 Henry de la Pomeray IX., died in 1367, being then a knight (Inq. p. m., 41 Edw. III., No. 50).

†† Henry de la Pomeray X. died in 1374, being also then a knight (Inq. p. m., 48 Edw. III., No. 57).

* Thomas and Johanna Pomeray died without surviving issue; the Edward who succeeded was of a collateral branch.

† He is called Walscinus de Duacus in the Exon Domesday, where he is said to hold, amongst many others, the manor of Bampton (Baentona, Exon Domesday, fol. 345*b*). He granted the church of Bampton to the Prior and Monks of Bath, which was confirmed by his son Robert de Bampton, and by his grandson Fulk Painell (Abb. Placit., 15 John, M'mas., Rot. 14, in dorso), and concerning which a dispute arose between William Painell, the son and heir of Fulk, and the Prior of Bath (Ibid.).

‡ Juliana de Bampton in her widowhood married Warine de la Haule (Abb. Placit., 9 John, Rot. 12, in dorso), and it seems pretty certain that by this marriage she was the mother of Richard de la Haye, whose three daughters, Nichola, Juliana, and Isabella were heirs to certain lands which had been held by Fulk de Painell (Abb. Placit., 38 Hen. III., Coram Rege, Hill., Rot. 6, in dorso).

§ William Painell was son of Radulphus Painell, who accompanied the Conqueror to England, and afterwards founded the Priory of Holy Trinity in York. He was Lord of Drax, in Yorkshire, and held many lands in Devonshire as well as in Yorkshire (Inq. p. m., 33 Ed. I., No. 139, and 34 Edw. I., No. 8, Exon Domesday, fol. 67*b*, et seq.). He had two other sons, Alexander and Jordan, who were perhaps ancestors of families settled in Lincoln, Essex, and Sussex (Abb. Placit., 11 John, Easter, Rot. 14). William Painell founded the Priory of St. Nicholas at Drax (Abb. Placit., 11 John, Easter, Rot. 14). Besides Fulk, he had a son Hasculf Painell (Rot. Litt.

* Fulk Painell is described as the son of Juliana (Abb. Placit., 9 John, Rot. 12, in dorso), and Robert de Bampton is mentioned as the great-grandfather (avus) of Fulk's son William (Abb. Placit., 15 John, M'mas., Rot. 14, in dorso), thus substantiating the pedigree in the text. In 1164 his father, William Painell had rendered an account to the Treasury of 15*l.* 3*s.* 4*d.*, of which he paid 10*l.* 3*s.* 4*d.*, and Fulk Painell was excused the payment of the remaining 5*l.* (Rot. Pip., 11 Hen. II., Rot. 6, memb. 2, vol. viii., p. 50), Fulk had seisin of the honour of Bampton in 1199 (Rot. de Obl., 1 John, membs. 22 and 21, in dorso), and must have been dead in 1217, when the King directed that his lands in Yorkshire and Leicester should be seised to Hasculf Painell, his brother (Rot. Litt. Claus., 1 Hen. III., memb. 15, de reversis).

† William Painell is mentioned as the son of Fulk in the dispute between him and the Prior of Bath already referred to (Abb. Placit., 15 John, M'mas., Rot. 14, in dorso). He married Alicia de Mohun (Rot. Fin., 12 Hen. III., memb. 7), sister and one of the heirs of William Briwer, jun., who had as his portion the manor of Axminster (Rot. Fin., 17 Hen. III., memb. 5). She was the widow of Reginald de Mohun, Lord of Dunster. William Painell was dead in 1228, when the custody of his lands and heirs was granted to Herbert Fitz Matthew, reserving the dower of Alicia, his widow, out of the manors of Bampton and Uffculme (Rot. Fin., 3 Hen. III., memb. 13). To this William succeeded another William Painell, who in 1245 was permitted to discharge his father's debt of 100*l.* due to the King by annual payments of 20 marks (Rot. Fin., 29 Hen. III., memb. 1). He married Sybilla (Rot. Fin., 33 Hen. III., memb. 1), but died without issue in 1249, when his sister Auda, wife of John de Balun, became his heir (Inq. p. m., 33 Hen. III., Nos. 23 and 32; Rot. Fin., 33 Hen. III., memb. 10), who also died without issue (Inq. p. m., 3 Edw. I., No. 19).

‡ It appears that the Matilda in the text was not the wife of William Painell, of Bampton, but of a William Painell who, with his wife, Matilda, in 1245, paid half a mark for a precept to the Sheriff of Sussex with reference to their affairs in Essex. These may have been the parents of the three daughters enumerated in the text, but they had no interest in Bampton (Rot. Fin., 29 Hen. III., memb. 10).

§ Miles de Cogan had from Henry II. a grant of half the Lordship of Desmond, excepting the city of Cork and some other lands (Rot. Orig., 5 Edw. III., Rot. 22), and was still living in 1226 when the citizens of Limerick paid him 22*l.* for his maintenance, unless indeed, as seems probable from the length of time, two Miles de Cogans existed.

Arms: Barry bendy of six, argent and gules, on a bordure sable, nine bezants.

Rogerus¶ de Valletorta anno 12 Regis Henrici II. tenuit honorem de Huberton, cui successit Reginaldus de Valletorta

* John de Cogan married the only daughter of Gerald Prendegaste by the sister of Theobald Pincerna, and had an only son, who was born in 1242 (Inq. p. m., 36 Hen. III., No. 61). In 1274 he was seized of the manor of Bampton, which was the head manor of his barony, and which he held in capite by the service of one knight's fee (Rot. Hundr., 3 Edw. I., Devon, No. 4).

† John de Cogan was dead in 1301, when his son and heir, Thomas de Cogan, was twenty-six years of age and more (Inq. p. m., 30 Edw. I., No. 29).

‡ Thomas de Cogan, who was born circa 1275, appears to have been dead in 1314, when William, Bishop of Exeter, was acquitted of 100*l.* which he owed for the custody of lands which had belonged to him (Iss. Excheq., 8 Edw. II., Easter).

§ Sir Richard Cogan was in possession of Hunstill, near North Petherton, in 1327 (Rot. Orig., Ext. Vascomie, Grossi Fines, Rot. 33), was dead in 1367, when he was seized of Uffculme and Bampton manors, in Devon, and the manors of Hunstill, Wigbere and Hunspill, in Somerset (Inq. p. m., 41 Edw. III., No. 15).

|| Sir William Cogan was dead in 1382, when he was seized of the manors of Hunspill and Wigbere, and of Stratton, in the manor of South Petherton, in Somerset, and the manors of Uffculme and Bampton, and lands of Hakepenne, in Devon. His wife, Isabella, was dead in 1420, having had a dower out of the lands of Hunspill, Wigbere, Stratton, Uffculme, Baunton, and Hakepenne (Calend. Inq. p. m., 6 Ric. II., No. 22, and 8 Hen. V., No. 102).

¶ The manor of Harberton, the head of this barony, was given by King Henry I. to Roger de Nonant, senior, from whose heirs it passed, as did the honour of Totnes, to Roger de Valletort. This Roger was descended from Reginald de Valletort, his ancestor (tritavus) [great-great-great-great-grandfather] (Abb. Placit., 3 John, Rot. Cornub., Rot. 10, dorso), who, as well as Hugo de Valletort and Godfrey de Valletort, held lands in Devon, Cornwall, and Somerset shortly after the Conquest (Exon Domesday, passim). Reginald was by far the most important person, holding extensive estates under the Earl of Moretain, including thirty-six manors, of which Tremerton, Calstock, and Ludbrook were three. It is probable that Reginald was father of Roger de Valletort, who paid scutage in 1162 (Rot. Pip., 8 Hen. II., Rot. 1, memb. 2), and that he in turn was father of Radulph de Valletort, who made a payment to the Sheriff of Devon in 1164-65 (Rot. Pip., 11 Hen. II., Rot. 9, memb. 1). The Roger in the text should probably be identified with this Roger of 1162, but we have found no confirmation of the marriage with the daughter of the Earl of Cornwall. In this case, Roger, the father of Reginald de Valletort below, would probably be the grandson of Roger of 1162 and son of Radulph de Valletort in 1164. It is to be observed that no proof has been found of the relationship of Reginald (1083), Roger (1160), and Radulph (1164), and we have also no proof that Radulph was the father of Roger de Valletort, the great-grandson of Reginald of Domesday, who was living 1201-6. He married Alicia, to whom the manor of Callington was given in marriage by King John (Rot. Litt. Claus., 4 Hen. III., memb. 1), and which was afterwards inherited by her son, Reginald de Valletort (ibid, 5 Hen. III., memb. 21). He died in 1206, when his heirs were in the custody of the Bishop of Winchester, as has been already explained. The further history of the family has been traced under the honour of Totnes.

* The name of this lady was apparently Isota or Isolda.

† It does not appear that this Joanna was one of the heirs of Valletort, though her husband acquired the manor of Modbury.

‡ Roger de Valletort held the Barony of Harberton of the King in capite by the service of two knights or four esquires in war when the King had need of them.

wall in 1220, and who may have been the son of one of the marriages mentioned. The honour of Braneis, or Bradninch, seems to have followed the Earldom of Cornwall, except for a short time, when it was granted by King Henry III. to William de la Lunde, who had a precept of seisin in 1240, but at whose death it escheated to the crown, and was again granted to the Earl of Cornwall.

* The daughters of William Briwer did not become the co-heirs of their father (who died in 1224) until the death of their only brother, William Briwer, before 22 Feb., 1233.

† Margeria, the daughter of William Briwer, or de La Bruere, married William de La Ferte (Rot. Fin., 17 Hen. III., memb. 5), and had an only daughter and heir (Rot. Fin., 17 Hen. III., memb. 6), who married (ibid.) Pagan de Chaworth.

‡ Pagan de Chaworth was dead in 1226 (Rot. Fin., 10 Hen. III., memb. 4). His son, Patrick de Chaworth, in 1239 fined 50 marks to have the custody of his lands, notwithstanding his nonage, and at the same time paid 500*l.* for

He died in 1257 (Inq. p. m., 42 Hen. III., No. 26), leaving a widow, Hawisia, who died in 1273 the widow of . . . de London (Inq. p. m., 2 Edw. I., No. 27).

* Pagan de Chaworth, the eldest son of Patrick de Chaworth, is described as heir to his father and mother in their Inquisitions post mortem (Inq. p. m., 42 Hen. III., No. 26, and 2 Edw. I., No. 7), and died without issue in 1278 (Inq. p. m., 7 Edw. I., No. 17), aged thirty-five years.

† Patrick de Chaworth was found brother and heir of Pagan de Chaworth, and to be of the age of twenty-five years and more in 1278 (Inq. p. m., 7 Edw. I., No. 17), and was dead in 1282 (Inq. p. m., 11 Edw. I., No. 35). He married Isabella, daughter of William Beauchamp, Earl of Warwick, afterwards the wife of Hugh le Despencer, senior (Inq. p. m., 34 Edw. I., No. 13), by whom he had an only daughter and heir, Matilda, who was aged one and a half year, in 1282 (Inq. p. m., 11 Edw. I., No. 35), and afterwards became the wife of Henry Plantagenet, Earl of Lancaster (ibid.). Harvey de Chaworth, who held a grant in the Forest of Dean from his mother, Hawisia, was also a brother of Patrick de Chaworth (Inq. p. m., 2 Edw. I., No. 70).

(Fin. Anno. 6 Johannis, memb. 12.)

Oliverus de Dinant principio regni regis Henrici II. tenuit (Harteland) et reliquit Olivero filio suo. Oliverus genuit Galfridum.†

* There is no record of the holder of the Manor of Hartland in Domesday, but it came early into the hands of the Dinhams, who had probably previously held lands in South Devon, of which the Manor of Harpford was given by William the Conqueror to the ancestors of Oliver Dinham ('Testa de Nevill,' vol. i., fol. 837, p. 194). The earliest member of the family appears to be Rainald de Dinham, who was a juror in the two hundreds of Ely, the court of which was held at Wichford, earlier than the compilation of the Domesday Book (Inq. Eliensis, fol. 2, Cott. MSS. Tiberius A, 6), and we next find Alan de Dinham holding the lands of Meines in Hampshire, and Burton in Northamptonshire (Pipe Roll, 5 Hen. II., Rot. 7, memb. 1, in dorso; 'Testa de Nevill,' vol. i., fol. 113, p. 25*b*), the latter having been given to him by Henry I., in recognition of military services in France. He appears to have died in 1158, and to have been succeeded by a son, Roland de Dinham, who held these lands from 1158 onwards, and who also had the lands of Gainz in Berkshire, and other estates in Cambridgeshire, Dorset, and Huntingdon (Pipe Rolls, 5 Hen. ii., et seq.). He appears to have been the father of four sons, Galfrid, Josce, Oliver and Robert. Of these Galfrid appears to have been the eldest. He paid scutage of Wales for Devonshire in 1164-5 (Rot. Pip., 11 Hen. II., Rot. 9, memb. 1), and died apparently without issue. The second son was probably Josce, who appears to have died without male issue, leaving two daughters, Hawisia, wife of Fulk FitzWarine, and Sibilla, married to —— de Blugenay, who petitioned for the lands of Buckland and Corfton in Somerset, and Hartland in Devon, against Oliver de Dinham, in 1204. (Rot. Fin., 6 John, memb. 12). Oliver eventually became the representative of the family, and owned the Manor of Hartland, Buckland, and Corfton ('Testa de Nevill,' vol. i, fol. 706, p. 162, fol. 837, p. 194). His eldest son, Galfrid de Dinham, who joined with his father Oliver and his uncle Galfrid in the endowment of Hartland Abbey (Rot. Pat., 5 Edw. IV., pt. 3, memb. 13, viae Oliver's 'Monasticon, Devon,' p. 207) appears to have died without issue in his father's lifetime, the next holder of Hartland being Oliver de Dinham, as in the text, who was dead in 1220 (Rot. Litt. Claus., 5 Hen. III., memb. 7).

† Galfrid de Dinham paid scutage in Devon, Somerset, and Dorset ('Testa de Nevill,' vol. i., fol. 814, p. 188, and fol. 727, 738, pp. 166, 169), and in 1234 he paid aid for the marriage of Isabella, the King's sister, afterwards Empress of Germany. He was dead in 1258 (Inq. p. m., 43 Hen. III., No. 4). This Galfrid appears to have been the hero of a disgraceful seduction in the Church of Teya in 'the time of the War,' his victim being Rosa, daughter and heir of Henry de Merke. Of this connection there was an only daughter, Alda, or Albrida, who would have been heir to her grandfather, de Marke, were the marriage of Galfrid and Rosa capable of proof (Inq. p. m., 54 Hen. III., No. 23), and it would seem that a marriage did take place between the two, as on the death of Alda, unmarried, in 1275, her granduncle, Andrew de Merke, was found to be her next heir (Inq. p. m., 4 Edw. I., No. 3). This must have been a second marriage.

* Though other genealogists mention but one Oliver de Dinham at this point, it appears to be not improbable that the pedigree in the text is correct, though the Inquisition post mortem of the first Oliver has not been found. He (if he it was) married Mary, the daughter of Hugh Courtenay of Hemington, in Somerset, which lands Mary held as dower in 1279 (Placit. de q. w., 8 Edw. I, com. Somerset, Rot. 62). He was twenty-four years of age at the date of his father's Inquisition post mortem in 1258, and did homage for his lands in Devon in the same year (Rot. Fin., 43 Hen. III., memb. 10, alias 2).

† Oliver de Dinham, if not identical with the preceding, which seems improbable when it is remembered that Mary Courtenay was the wife of an Oliver de Dinham in 1279, and this Oliver de Dinham was the husband of Isabella de Vere in 1276, had grants of free warren in the counties of Cornwall, Devon and Somerset in 1280-85 (Cal. Rot., Litt. Pat., 16 Rich. II., memb. 16). He was dead in 1298 (Rot. Orig., 27 Edw. I., Rot. 3).

‡ The wife of Oliver de Dinham was Isabella, daughter of Hugh de Vere, 4th Earl of Oxford, and widow of John de Courtenay, of Okehampton.

§ Josce de Dinham was found to be twenty-four years and upwards in 1298 (Inq. p. m., 27 Edw. I., No. 42), and did homage for the lands which his father had held in capite in the same year (Rot. Orig., 27 Edw. I., Rot 6). He died in 1300 when at his Inquisition post mortem, dower was assigned to his widow Margaret, and his son was found to be five years of age (Inq. p. m., 29 Edw. I., No. 56).

|| John de Dinham was in the ward of the King for many years, and on attaining his majority he did homage, 18 Oct., 1316, for his father's lands (Parl. Writs., 10 Edw. II., pt. i., p. 535, No. 1). He died in 1332, leaving a widow, Margaret—not Johanna, as in the text (Inq. p. m., 6 Edw. III., No. 59 and No. 7) who died in 1357 (Inq. p. m., 31 Edw. III., No. 43).

¶ Sir Oliver de Dinham had a grant of the privilege of 'Infangnetheof' within his manor of Sampford Peverell in 1336. (Rot. Litt. Pat., 10 Edw. III., pt. 2, memb. 34, a turgo). He married Johanna, who appears to have been a daughter of Guy de Brian, as in 1368 she granted her lands of Sampford and Aller Peverell to Guy de Brian, probably her brother, for the term of her life (Rot. Orig., 42 Edw. III., Rot. 33). Sir Oliver died in 1342, probably without issue (Inq. p. m., 16 Edw. III., No. 17).

Muriel was dead in 1369, when her share of the Courtenay estate, including Kingskarswell, in Devon, and Overton in Oxford, were assigned to her son John (Rot. Orig., 43 Edw. III., Rot. 11).

† His Inquisition post mortem was in 1382 (Inq. p. m., 6 Rich. II., No. 28).

‡ Sir John de Dinham had a confirmation of the privileges granted in Buckland and Hartland to his ancestors Galfrid and Oliver de Dinham (Rot. Litt. Pat., 16 Ric. II., memb. 16), and was dead in 1428 (Inq. p. m., 7 Hen. VI., No. 56).

§ An inquisition taken in 1405 shows that Matilda, wife of Sir John Dinham, Kt., was dead at that date (Inq. p. m., 7 Hen. IV., No. 24). Philippa, and not Elizabeth, seems to have been the Christian name of the daughter of Sir John Lovell, but there is some little confusion with regard to the wives of this John de Dinham which we have been unable to clear up.

‖ Sir John de Dinham was dead in 1457 (Inq. p. m., 36 Hen. VI., No. 39). He had two brothers, Charles and Roger, mentioned as heirs in remainder to the Courtenay estates already referred to (Rot. Pat., 3 Edw. IV., pt. 3, memb. 10); they seem to have died without issue.

¶ The daughters were Elizabeth, wife of Fulke Bourchier, Lord Fitzwarren, and perhaps afterwards of Sir John Sapcote; Joan, wife of John, Lord Zouche; Margaret, wife of Sir John Carew, of Mohun's Ottery; and Katherine, wife of Sir Thomas Arundel, of Lanherne.

COMITES DEVONIÆ.

Arms : Or, a lion rampant, azure.

REX HENRICUS primus Ricardum de Redvers sive de Ripariis in comitem Devonie creavit, eique tercium denarium annui redditus dicti comitatus ei inter alia multa donavit. Tota quidem valuacio exitus qui tunc temporis ad regem pertinebat, tocius hujus comitatus ad 30 marcas annui valoris extendebatur.

Baldwinus successit Ricardo patri, et Baldwino Ricardus filius et Ricardo Baldwinus filius, cui Ricardus frater.

Baldwino vero et Ricardo filiis Ricardi sine prole defunctis, Willelmus advunculus eorum dictus de Vernona comes Devonie est, et super Mabiliam comitis Mellenti filiam genuit Baldwinum Mariam nuptam Roberto Courtenay, et Joannam Willelmo Briwer juniori, que mortua est sine exitu. Baldwinus vero suscepit Baldwinum filium. Baldwinus hic Comes Devonie procreavit Baldwinum ultimum de Ripariis comitem, et Isabellam uxorem Willelmo Comiti Albermarlie hec post mortem fratris sui Baldwini comitissa Devonie et Albemarlie est, et sine liberis moriebatur Anno Domini 1293.

Ergo Hugonem Courteney Edwardus III. in comitem creavit, fuit enim proximus sanguine, ut filius Hugonis filii Johannis filii Marie filie Willelmi de Vernon Comitis Devonie. Et obiit Anno Domini 1339. Genuit autem ex Agneta filia domini St. John Hugonem tercium ejus nominis, et secundum ex familia Courteneyorum qui comes erat Devonie. Sed quia in titulo de Okhamton totum hoc stemma explanare proposui, solummodo Comites Devonie hoc in loco memorabo, nisi quod quicquid ad jus illius honoris pertinere videatur leviter tangere oportet.

Hugo iste III., secundus istius nominis Comes Devonie multos habuit per Margaretam de Bohun filios et filias, sed duos tantum filios commemmorabo Edwardum,* videlicet Comitem Devonie et Philippum Courteney militem, ex quo prosapia Courtneiorum que nunc est profluxerit.

Edwardus Courtneiorum Comes quartus† habuit exitus Edwardum et Hugonem; ad cujus posteros honor istius Comitatus transfertur.

Edwardus Courtneyiorum Comes quintus‡ Hugonem quartum genuit. Iste Hugo Courtenayorum comes sextus§ procreavit Thomam.

Thomas vero habuit tres filios et unam filiam nomine Joannam.

Filii vero illius Thomas Comes Devonie Eboraci capite plexus est, et septimo anno post Henricus Comes Devonie|| frater ejus eadem pena Sarisburie mulctatus est. Johannes Courteney tercius frater dominum Lancastrensem partem sequitus est, et nomen comitis sibi assumpsit apud Tewkesbery occisus cecidit.

Joanna soror eorum Rogero Clifford enupta habuit filium Carolum, extra quatuor juaria, in transmarinis partibus natum.

Postea Edwardus quartus rex in injuriam familiæ Courtneiorum Humfridum Stafford de Southwick hoc titulo honoravit, verum ipse favorem principis, honorem hanc, et vitam cito post amisit. Apud Brigwater decollatus fuit. Henricus vero septimus cum regnum acquivisset memor istius familie Edwardum Courtney proximum masculum heredem ad hunc honorem ereperit, et Willelmum filium suum cum nupciis Katerine Edwardi IV. regis filie et Elizabethe uxoris ejus sororis honoravit.

Willelmus successit Edwardo patri, ex quo exiit Henricus.

Iste tanti fuerit apud Henricum VIII. ut eum Marchionem Exonie creavit, et regni successorem nominabit. Sed fortuna hominem deridens cito illum in humum prostravit, et capite truncavit.

Edwardus tamen Courtenay filius dicti Henrici per Mariam reginam in integrum restitutus est, sed post longam incarceracionem libertatis sue minus prudens, ad exteras partes se disposuit, et Pattavii in Italia morbo vita privatus est. Et quamvis nomen hoc, et familia in tercio et proximo stemmate virescit, tamen honor hic et titulus in cinere jacuit, donec rex

* Edward Courtenay died before his father, leaving a son, Edward, who succeeded his grandfather as Earl of Devon.

† This was the third Earl.

‡ This person was never Earl of Devon, as he predeceased his father in 1418 without issue.

§ This is Hugh, fourth Earl of Devon, son of Edward, the third Earl.

|| His brother's attainder prevented his succession to the Earldom.

Jacobus Carolum dominum Mountjoy Comitem Devonie creavit. Sed paululum temporis hoc gaudebat, nam infra binos annos moriebatur sine successore.* Et contencio orta est quis sibi sit in sanguine proximus heres. Et ambo isti et Stafford et Mountjoy non per dissensum et jure hereditario in hunc comitatum intrusi, brevi tempore, et cum ignominia gaudebant: primus enim tergum vertens et cum multo timore prelium apud [Edgecote] fugiens quacito comes factus et per mandatum regis Edwardi IV. apud [Bridgwater] in comitatu Sumerset inter amicos et servos in comitatu ubi natus et educatus fuerat capite truncatus est. Alter quoque alterius uxorem sibi conjunxit, et prolem illicitam in totam hereditatem suam vocavit, et sic conspurcatam sui memoriam posteris reliquit.

* The list of Sheriffs should be compared, as regards those from 31 Henry I. to 4 Edward III., with the list published in the Thirty-first Report of the Deputy Keeper of the Public Records, Appendix, p. 278. Though the two lists differ in important respects, that of Risdon should not be taken as always incorrect, as is shown by the note with reference to Eudo de Beauchamp on p. 86, ante. The list was printed in an extended form to 1809 in Risdon's Survey, and was carefully completed to 1891 by the late Mr. Winslow Jones in Notes and Gleanings, vol. iv., p. 61.—EDS.
